Welcome

I welcome you to Federation University Australia (FedUni), a University community of around 23,000 international and domestic students. We offer access to higher education, vocational education, secondary schooling and research opportunities at campuses in Ballarat, Gippsland and the Wimmera. Our programs are also delivered online and via a range of partner institutes across Australia and around the globe.

Our University prides itself in being an inclusive, diverse and welcoming place which fosters a sense of community, respect and responsibility. We are committed to providing an excellent student experience and we welcome feedback and leadership from students on how to improve your on-campus experience and support services.

We hope that this guide will assist our Muslim students in settling into life at FedUni, and to access the range of support services and facilities we and our regional communities have to offer. I wish you success in your studies and I hope that you find your experience at FedUni rewarding and enriching.

Living in Australia

A multicultural and multireligious society

Australia is a diverse, multicultural and multireligious society. Our population includes Indigenous Australians – the traditional owners and caretakers of the land; the descendants of convicts and settlers who arrived on our shores with European settlement; and a wide array of migrants from around the globe.

Today more than a quarter of Australians were born overseas. Australia welcomes people from all over the world and does not discriminate on racial, cultural or religious grounds. As a nation, we embrace the spectrum of religious beliefs. Buddhist, Christian, Hindu, Jewish, Muslim, Sikh as well as those who do not practice a particular faith. Places of worship for many faiths are found in almost every major city.

Because of this diversity, it is very difficult to precisely define what constitutes 'Australian culture'. However, the following may be useful for new visitors.

Greetings and language

Australians are often not very formal so greetings are usually casual. A common Australian greeting is 'g'day' but 'hi' and 'hello' are common.

Use of informal names is common and can include the shortening of names ('Johnno' instead of 'Jonathon'). It is also relatively common for people to use each other's first names, particularly if they are of the same age or are young adults. If in doubt, feel free to use someone's title with their last name, e.g. 'Mr Smith' or 'Professor Jones' but don't be surprised if you are informed that you can use their first name. Women were traditionally given 'Miss' if unmarried and 'Mrs' if married. But 'Ms' (pronounced 'mizz') for either is now common and useful if you are unaware what the person prefers to be called.

Some people shake hands to greet each other, regardless of gender. This is more common in a business setting. Sometimes people kiss each other once on the cheek or give a brief hug for greetings and goodbyes. This would normally only be in a personal setting and if the people know each other well. It would not be usual amongst students or in the workplace with people unless they were close friends.

Some Australians may find it awkward and impolite to be refused a handshake, which can present some difficulties for Muslims who follow stricter interpretations of touching proscriptions based on gender. If so, explain in a polite manner why it is not appropriate for you to shake the hand of a person of the opposite gender.

Australian slang

www.koalanet.com.au/australian-slang.html

Socialising

Australians enjoy informal socialising, and will host social functions such as dinners, barbecues or parties. Sometimes it can be 'BYO' which means bring your own drinks or meat for a barbecue or 'bring a plate' where each guest brings a plate with food to share with others.

Although some Australians are vegetarians and vegans, and others belong to religious minorities that observe dietary restrictions, most Australians are not. Some may be uninformed about the dietary requirements of Muslims. If you have been invited to someone's house to eat, it is a good idea to gently forewarn your host with the halal requirements you observe and/or offer to bring something to eat and share. Many restaurants cater for halal diners and vegetarian options are usually available at restaurants, but be aware that these may sometimes contain alcohol.

Drinking alcohol is a common part of socialising among Australian adults, including in homes, at pubs and bars, as well as with dinner at restaurants and informal gatherings at work, such as after hours at the end of the week. It may help to decide ahead of time the level of comfort you have with being in the presence of alcohol-consumption, to help decide the types of events you wish to attend or decline.

Australian culture and etiquette

<http://dfat.gov.au/about-australia/society-culture/Pages/society-and-culture.aspx>

www.immi.gov.au/living-in-australia/choose-australia/about-australia/au-customs

Clothing

The types of clothing that people wear reflect the diversity in Australian society, the social situation and variations in the weather. There are no laws or rules on the types of clothing that people wear.

FedUni respects different cultures and styles of dress. Students generally wear casual clothing on campus. It is common for male and female students to wear jeans, t-shirts and jumpers. In the summer, students dress for comfort and can be seen in dresses, skirts, singlet tops and shorts. It is considered offensive to stare or comment on a person's choice of clothing.

Australians are expected to wear certain clothing styles in work situations. Most workplaces have dress standards but this varies on the type and location of the work undertaken. Outside the work situation, clothing style is a personal choice.

Discussing religion and politics

Australians are relatively comfortable discussing politics, but may be more hesitant to bring up religious topics, although non-Muslims can be curious about Islam and Muslims if they have not previously had the opportunity to get to know a Muslim. If they perceive a Muslim is open to being questioned they may use the opportunity to clarify questions and ideas.

Australia has no official state religion and people are free to practise any religion they choose, as long as they obey the law. Australia is a predominantly Christian country, with around 61% of all Australians identifying as Christians. However, most other major religious faiths are also practised, reflecting Australia's culturally diverse society.

Australians are also free not to have a religion. About 20% of Australians indicated on the most recent census that they have 'no religion' (this includes atheists and agnostics).

Equity and Equal Opportunity

FedUni is committed to providing equal opportunity and freedom from discrimination and harassment for all members of the FedUni community, and to creating an environment which reflects and values the social and cultural diversity within the FedUni community and the communities it serves.

At FedUni you can expect that:

- you will not be treated unfairly because of your sex, race, religious belief or activity, sexual orientation, disability, gender identity, marital status, pregnancy, breastfeeding, status as a parent or carer, lawful sexual activity, age, industrial activity, physical features, political belief or activity, criminal record
- you will not be harassed (made to feel intimidated, offended or humiliated) because of any of the above characteristics
- you will not be subjected to sexual harassment
- you will receive appropriate flexibility eg. because of disability, or for family or cultural responsibilities, and
- any concerns regarding discriminatory treatment or harassment will be dealt with promptly, fairly and impartially.

Your responsibilities

Australian values and laws affirm gender equality and set the expectation that women and men participate and are treated equally in all aspects of public life. This includes the expectation that women are not treated in any sexual way, in public life (including at FedUni), that might make them feel intimidated, offended or humiliated. This is called sexual harassment.

These values and laws also extend to many other personal characteristics as listed on the previous page. Again, there is the expectation in public life (including at FedUni), that no-one is made to feel intimidated, offended or humiliated because of any of these characteristics. This is called harassment.

FedUni expects you to play your part in making FedUni inclusive and free from harassment. Harassment can occur even if the behaviour is unintentional. It is the effect on another person that is important. Also, harassment is hard to predict - what might be acceptable to one person might be offensive to another. We all have to think in advance.

Behaviours which might result in another person feeling intimidated, offended and/or humiliated include:

- Physical intimacy or contact
- Sexual remarks or gestures
- Sexual jokes or images
- Intrusive personal questions or request for sexual acts or favours, or unwelcome or repeated requests for 'dates'
- Spreading gossip about a person, such as sexual gossip or gossip about a person's (real or assumed) race, religion, sexual orientation, disability etc
- Sexist or racist language or humour or images
- Displays of offensive images (eg on computers, posters, or graffiti) which are sexual, or target personal characteristics
- Negative comments, jokes or insults eg at the expense of others' personal characteristics

Islamic celebrations and special occasions

International Student Support office or Chaplain on your campus for specific times for prayers on feast day as these may vary in location.

Islamic Calendar

The Islamic calendar is lunar, like the Jewish calendar, but it has no corrective system to align it with the solar calendar so Islamic holidays do not always fall in the same season.

Lailat al Bara'ah – is a holiday observed by various Muslim communities on the night between 14 and 15 Sha'ban. It is regarded as a night when the fortunes of men for the coming year are decided and when Allah may forgive sinners. In some regions, this is also a night when one's deceased ancestors are honoured.

Isra and Mi'raj – In the twelfth year of his mission, the Prophet (Peace Be Upon Him) made his night journey from Mecca to Jerusalem, and thence to heaven. His journey, known in history as Miraj (Ascension), was a real bodily one and not only a vision. It was at this time that Allah ordered the Muslims to pray the five daily prayers.

Lailat al Miraj – is a Muslim holiday that commemorates the Prophet Muhammad's (Peace Be Upon Him) night-time journey from Mecca to the 'Farthest Mosque' in Jerusalem where he ascended to heaven, was purified and given the instruction for Muslims to pray five times daily.

Milad un Nabi – ID-E-Milad – The Prophet’s (Peace Be Upon Him) Birthday

Al-Hijra: Islamic New Year – Al-Hijra, the Islamic New Year, is celebrated on the first day of Muharram, the month in which Muhammad (Peace Be Upon Him) emigrated from Mecca to Medina in 622 CE (the Hijra).

Ramadan: Month of Fasting – Ramadan is not a holy day to Muslims but a holy month. It is the ninth month of the Muslim year, in which “the Quran was sent down as a guidance for the people”.

Tharaweeh prayers are performed during the month. Celebrations are based on a lunar year so the dates change from year to year.

- Gippsland – at the Spiritual Centre, Gippsland Campus.
- Ballarat – Muslim Prayer Room – Building G, Mt Helen Campus

Id Al-Fitr or Eid al-Fitr (Arabic for ‘Festival of the Breaking of the Fast’) is one of Islam’s two major festivals. It marks the end of Ramadan, the holy month of fasting, and is celebrated during the first three days of the month of Shawwal.

Id Al-Adha or Eid al-Adha (Arabic عيد الأضحية, ‘Festival of the Sacrifice’) is a major Islamic festival that takes place at the end of the Hajj.

Ashura: Remembering Shiite Martyr Husayn – Ashura (also spelled Aashurah, Ashurah or Aashoorah), is an Islamic holiday observed on the 10th of Muharram, the first month of the Islamic year.

Community resources

Gippsland Australian Muslim Community Inc (GAMCI)

GAMCI is a registered non-profit organisation that meets once per month at various places around the Latrobe Valley. One of the purposes of the GAMCI is “to represent and enhance the interests of the Muslim Community in the Gippsland region and throughout Australia”. GAMCI plans to be an integral part of the Muslim and wider community of Gippsland for many years and organises and conducts Islamic prayers, cultural festivals, sports events and social functions and is looking for a permanent place of worship around the Gippsland Community. GAMCI members pray at the spiritual centre at the University with other Muslim students.

GAMCI has a close relationship with the other Islamic bodies in Gippsland, being the United Muslim Sisters of Latrobe Valley (UMSLV) and the current Monash University Islamic Society (MUIS) with many GAMCI members also members of these bodies. GAMCI functions are held in collaboration with MUIS and UMSLV and often held at and with the support of the University.

GAMCI are also involved politically in the local area, with representations on Cultural Diversity committees and other local government committees. GAMCI have close and well established links with Victoria’s peak Islamic organisations, the Islamic Council of Victoria, as well as other regional Muslim groups.

Membership of GAMCI is currently free, and forms may be downloaded from the web site.

We welcome all Muslim students to Gippsland and hope that your stay in our lovely region is well remembered.

Email: gamci.2013@gmail.com

United Muslim Sisters of Latrobe Valley (UMSLV)

The United Muslim Sisters of Latrobe Valley is run by a group of Muslim women on a voluntary basis. The purpose of this group is, amongst other things, to allow for the community to come together and do this by organising family picnics and walks for charity. The fundraising walks for charity are usually held around the lake in Mathison Park, Churchill and at the end of the walk there is a morning tea organised by the ladies of the committee. The community also gets a chance to get together and share meals.

UMSLV works with various other committees in organising interfaith and multicultural events. Through their association with GECC (Gippsland Ethnic Community Council) they have organised Scarves Story events all around the Gippsland Region.

Eid and other festivals can be a difficult time when one is away from family. In affiliation with GAMCI and MUIS, UMSLV organises Eid festivals and picnics so the community can celebrate together. UMSLV also organises various activities for children to come together with other Muslim children who they can identify with.

UMSLV looks at empowering women within the community by providing individuals with training while informing them of opportunities where they can utilise their skills to gain exposure and earn money. The network is growing and through affiliated associations UMSLV are able to offer information about specific services that women in the community may require.

Membership of UMSLV is free and is open to Muslims and non-Muslims. You can become a member of UMSLV by emailing and filling out the membership form.
