Welcome to Federation University Australia

We're thrilled that you've taken the first step towards your postgraduate degree with Federation University. Whatever your passion or career goals, Federation has everything you need to further your career and make your mark in the world, feeling supported all the way.

Starting postgraduate studies is a big commitment, but luckily for those attending Federation we're among the top universities in Victoria for skills development (Good Universities Guide 2023) and that's because we have over 150 years history of partnering with community and industry to ensure we're educating and training graduates for the jobs and skills needed for the future of work in booming regional areas.

We're one of Australia's oldest universities with a long and strong history, and we draw on this experience to take us into the future. We're a smaller university, but this means we can be more agile, innovative and progressive in our response to regional and industry needs.

We are also at the forefront for postgraduate research, and are currently rated at or above the world standard in 80% of the Fields of Research research rankings by Excellence for Research Australia (ERA)

We have campuses in Ballarat, Berwick (Melbourne), Churchill (Gippsland), Wimmera (Horsham) and Brisbane. Each of our campuses are set in beautiful surroundings with stunning scenery and plenty of quiet nooks and crannies to absorb yourself in your studies.

Whether you're looking to advance within your current career, you're returning to study, or changing your career path completely, Federation University will give you the tools you need to continue your education journey, and to stay relevant in your chosen industry.

We're a Co-operative University - what does that mean?

The Federation University Co-operative Model – real workplaces, real projects, and real career opportunities.

Federation University aspires to be Australia's first co-operative university. We have made a commitment to embed co-operative learning across every program and course by 2025, in TAFE, higher education and research.

Co-operative learning, or 'co-op' is a well-established international model that prepares students to further their careers by linking them to workplaces as a core part of their degree through co-operative relationships with industry.

Co-op is different to traditional work placements. A co-op program incorporates employer and industry engagement from start to finish. It means that the program is co-designed, co-developed, co-delivered, co-assessed and co-accredited with input from employers and industry.

By actively working alongside regional employers and industries, we will ensure that your study experience is loaded with real-world skill development, you'll be certain of your future in your chosen industry, and you'll be supported to make a difference in your local community.

Co-op builds on our core strength as a dual-sector, regional university with top ratings in Victoria in graduate employment outcomes and skills development, along with our leadership in industry collaboration.

What does the co-op model offer students?

Our students will benefit from working on projects in real workplaces, delivering practical outcomes for industry, government, and not-for-profits, with the work experience they gain contributing to their academic record and completion of their program.

Every student will complete structured workplace skills and accredited learning in a workplace, with options for paid cadetships, internships, or working on real projects on campus.

Every Federation co-op degree will:

- Include transferable skills as well as technical skills to prepare you for your career
- Include at least 150 hours of workplace learning that contributes to your course credits
- Give you the opportunity to work alongside industry leaders and build your professional network while you study

You'll also be provided with a range of opportunities to suit your goals and needs, including:

- Paid extended internships
- Shorter 'learning in the workplace' opportunities
- Team-based projects for an industry partner
- Connections with local and international opportunities, with access to major national and global employers opening up opportunities for travel

At Federation University, our co-op model will provide you with real, meaningful work experience in workplaces using the latest technology, no matter what degree or program you choose.

Our industry connections are well established

Thanks to Federation's experienced staff and long history, we have some of the strongest industry and business relationships in Australia.

Work Integrated Learning

Across all our programs and courses Work Integrated Learning (WIL) can be real or simulated, occurring in the workplace, at University, online or face to face.

A WIL placement is a smart way to boost your employability and meet the kind of people you'll be working with in the field.

With our strong connections, we partner you with leading businesses and organisations.

Industry Placement Program

The Industry Placement Program (IPP) provides students with an opportunity to gain valuable workplace experience, to enhance their knowledge and skills. IPP is a unique pathway for businesses, government, and industry to attract new talent with skills and interests relevant to the workplace

Careers and employability

Our careers and employability team provide career advice, help with finding work while you study, internships and vacation programs, volunteer work, graduate programs, and graduate jobs.

We offer a broad range of services including several workshops and programs on a range of employment-related topics, offered both on campus and online. We can help with writing your resume, cover letter, key selection criteria document reviews, job interview preparation and practice, access to volunteering opportunities, and careers information and resources.

We also provide you with access to an online jobs portal, EDGE, which gives you access to a range of current employment, volunteer, and skills development opportunities.
