Although Australia punches well above its weight in research quality and outputs compared with other countries, less of its research is transformed to commercial or social enterprises.

*Recent initiatives by CSIRO, Federal and State governments are aimed at changing the culture so that researchers are equipped to assess and explore commercialization opportunities. *

The aim is to create an ecosystem where innovation and entrepreneurship thrives. Entrepreneurship is seen as particularly critical for the social and economic development of regional areas of Victoria such as Ballarat and Gippsland.

Six people involved in different ways with the entrepreneurial change happening will share their experiences in Lightning Talks

All Staff and HDR students welcome.
