Did you know?

Some of your students are cheating.

Yeah, sorry you had to hear it from me.

You might think cheating is a lot of effort, but it’s not.

So how many are cheating?
Some interesting stats

According to recent research by Assoc Prof Tracey Bretag (University of South Australia):

- 1 in 7 have bought, sold or traded notes
- 1 in 4 have provided others with completed assignments

* https://cheatingandassessment.edu.au/resources/
Who are the cheats?

Statistically,
“the most likely to cheat are, male, non-English speaking, international, engineering students, who study on campus”

* https://cheatingandassessment.edu.au/resources/
Why?

What were the main indicators of those who were most likely to cheat?

There was a strong correlation in responses from the cheating group with:

• being dissatisfied with the course
• insufficient support
• insufficient feedback
• lack of engagement by teaching staff

The more students were supported, the less likely they were to cheat.
We refer to the outsourcing of assessment as Contract Cheating.

Where do students get their assignments?

From other students 60%
Friend or Family 51%
Partner 9%
Paid for a service 13.3%

*These results relate only to the small group of students who were classified in the report as the cheating group (about 6% of those surveyed)

Go ahead, Google “Write my essay”, or “Paraphrase tool”
They even rank them!

How are cheats detected?

Knowledge of the student 71%

Language ability 62%

High text match via software (eg. Turnitin) 49%

Turnitin is not infallible, but is still responsible for identifying approximately half of all cheats.
Turnitin is your friend

(And your students too!)

What Turnitin Does

- Assists with referencing
- Checks for matching text
- Provides great feedback tools
  - Highlighting
  - Quick comments
  - Rubrics
  - Voice feedback

What Turnitin does not

- Detect plagiarism
- Hold multiple versions
- Support Mac Pages and Open Office docs
The Goliath of the Sea

The majestic blue whale, the goliath of the sea, certainly stands alone within the animal kingdom for its adaptations beyond its massive size. At 30 metres (98 ft) in length and 190 tonnes (210 short tons) or more in weight, it is the largest existing animal and the heaviest that has ever existed. Despite their incomparable mass, aggressive hunting in the 1900s by whalers seeking whale oil drove them to the brink of extinction. But there are other reasons for why they are now so endangered.

The blue whale’s common name derives from bluish-hue that covers the upper side of it body, while its Latin designation is Balaenoptera musculus. The blue whale belongs to the Mysteceti suborder of cetaceans, also known as baleen whales, which means they have fringed plates of fingernail-like material, called baleen, attached to their upper jaws. Blue whales feed almost exclusively on krill, though they also take small numbers of copepods. An adult blue whale can eat up to 40 million krill in a day.

LL password is changed in every inventory. 7. Conclusion Although recent actions about RFID technology taken by Wal-Mart Corporation and Department of Defense has heat up the topic of RFID once again since WWII, the technology has not yet been proliferating as expects. This is mainly due to the reasons of the lack of standardization, the security/privacy issues, and more importantly the cost. To decrease the cost, standardization is a very important factor. In addition, security/privacy issues are barriers to people's acceptance of this technology. Therefore, more works have to be done in standardization and addressing the secur
